King's equity, under his second mortgage against W. B. L. is no greater than the complainants, whose equity is prior in time and must prevail. That as to the lots formerly under the Trust Co. mortgages, and in 1842 conveyed to King in trust. K. as trustee, and his beneficiary, were necessary parties. Before Judge Edmonds.

Frang.—John F. Kemmeli vs. Wm McKie.—This was an action to recover $2,000. It appeared that, in June 1844, the defendant was robbed of his value in Albany, in which was $10,000. He came on to this city, and offered a reward of $2,000 for the recovery of the money, and the capture of the thief. A man named Harvey, alias Daly, with a female accomplice, was arrested by Measrs. Walker & Sweet, two officers of the old police, and the money, except about $50, was recovered, and returned to the defendant, who paid to Walker and Sweet the reward. The plaintiff alleges that it was he that gave the information to Walker, through which Harvey and his companion were arrested, and the money recovered, and now brings his action to recover the reward from McKie Several witnesses were examined for the plaintiff, among whom was a Mr. Putnam, who keeps a store in Washington street. He proved that the plaintiff was his clerk at the time of the robbery; that a day or two before the arrestand recovery of the money, the plaintiff observed a respectably dressed man and woman go into a house of suspicious character, opposite the witness's store; that circumstance struck the plaintiff at the time, and he had determined to watch them. In the course of the next day, he again observed a carriage drive up to the same house, and the identical female came out of it, went in, and shortly after returned with a trunk, which, by her directions, the driver placed in the back part of the carriage; after which, she got in, and the carriage was driven off at a quick pack. The plaintiff was standing at the store doer of his employer, all the time looking on; and, after the carriage had driven off, mentioned the circumstance to Mr. Putnam, who desired him to jump into his wagon, which was standing at the door, and drive after it. He accordingly followed it, until he saw it stop at the Battery Hotel. On his way, he met Walker and Sweet, and told them about it. They then went into the Battery Hotel, arrested him, o

The Greensburg (Pa) Intelligencer says:—We regret to learn that during the late rise of the waters in the Youghiogheny, the mill of Mr. Kuhn, on that river, was carried from its foundation and precipitated into the river. Mr. Graham's mill, a short distance below, we also learn was moved from its foundation several feet.

The Upper Mississippian, printed at Rock Island, of the 20th, says that an attempt was made on the merning of the 17th, by Baxter, Kingsbury, and Burch to break the jail of that place. Baxter and Burch were confined as accomplices in the murder of Colonel Davenport. A vardict of guilty had been rendered against Baxter, but this, it appears, had been reversed by the Supreme Court, at its present session at Spring-field.

MONEY MARKET.

Monday, February 9-6 P. M. There was quite a panic in Wall street to-day, among the bulls. Quotations for stocks fell off, in some instan ces, as much as four per cent. The news from Washington has been a greater damper to the operators in stocks than they have experienced for a long time. Long laland fell off 3 per cent; Canton 2; Harlem 3; Nor wich and Worcester 4; Reading Railroad 2; Morris Canal 1; Farmers' Loan 1; Pennsylvania 5's 1]; Illinois 6's 1; Vicksburg ; North American Trust ;

Ohio 6's 1.

Prices for stocks at the second board experienced a farther decline. The bears were in high spirits, and the fail in quotations was large enough to satisfy the most invetorate bear in Wall street. We expect to see prices touch a point lewer than they have for the past the seat of government look rather squally, but we think it is the beginning of the end; that the Oregon question is nearer a settlement, in some way, than it has ever been expense in the erection of the Works which would tend, in the teast degree, to the improvement of the Lead, having availed themselves of every modern improvement for that purpose.

Being well aware, from our long familiarity with the different leads sold in our market, that by far the greater proportion sold as such has been, and atill is greatly adulterated with Baytes, an article of mineral production much heavier than White Lead, and in itself poisessing no virtue of any pigment whistever, it being, when mixed with oil, almost transparent, and in fact having bothing but its specific weight to recommend it the Transress of the Atlantic White Lead Company have passed, ananimously, the following resolution, viz:

"Resilved, That in view of manufacturing only a prime article, the Atlantic White Lead Company will make but one quality of White Lead, both Dry and Ground in Oil; that to be a strictly pure, genuine article, and perfectly free from any adulteration whatever, which the Company will warrant as such to all who may purchase their Lead."

Parchasers, therefore, may be well assured that every dependence may be placed in the parity of every pound of White Lead manufactured and sold by the Company. Which pureness will not only tend to the greater durability of the Faint, but will be found much more economical in its use, even in the mow common description of painting, owing to the body or covering quality it possesses, thereby giving a far better finish with two coats, than the adulterated white Faint would writh three, of which every painter will hear without a fainting of the body of the company also masufacture deal Lead and Litherge, and Harty of which every painter will hear without Litherge, and Fainty will be a supported general Agents for the Company, all orders should be directed to us.

Highly Important from Washington. OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS. THE OREGON QUESTION.

Washington, Feb. 8, 1846.
The Announcements in the Herald—The Oregon Correspondence—Fortifications and Defences of the Country—Friends of the President in the Senate. The message of the President, which was communicated to the House of Representatives yesterday, conveying the late correspondence between Mr. Pakenham and the Secretary of State, sustains, most fully, the character of the Herald, for the accuracy of all the information which it has, for the last six weeks, laid befor the public, upon the Oregon question, and which was disbelieved almost every where. Indeed, sir, it did not appear strange to me, that so much ignorance and incredulty, with to me, that so much ignorance and incredulity, with regard to the Herald's information, should prevail all around, and that the party press, on both sides, should be at fault on such matters; but I confess I was somewhat chagrined at the doubts which you were induced to express at the time, of the correctness of the information transmitted to you then. that received the news of the renewal of the correspondence between the British Minister and Mr. Buchanan, the day after it commenced; and yours is the only paper that has, since then,—six weeks ago,—had a regular and correct run of every important point connected with the Oregon and Mexican questions.

temporaries are ever willing to raise about the Her ald's information.

In my letter of the 5th instant, I informed you of Lord Aberdeen's construction of the passage of the notice, in connection with Mr. McLane .than what every sensible man in the country had previously thought on the same subject, except the "chivalry" of the South, it may happen that a crists is not far off, in which both England and America may be involved, leading directly to a contest for national superiority, if not of national exisand in all quarters, the doubts which jealous con-

relating to the vast military and naval preparations going on in England, are evasive, and of a diploma-tic character altogether, and should be received generally by the country as such, as I know they are by this government. What, then, is to be done by us under these circumstances? We ought to prepare for the worst in the shortest possible time, she to maintain our rights, at any and every cost, to what we know to be ours.

Although the President has not sent into Congress, with the copies of the late correspondence between

Although the President has not sent into Congress, with the copies of the late correspondence between Mr. Pakenham and Mr. Buchanan, any recommendation to fortify our sea boards and increase the army and navy, yet it is his intention to do so in a few days, when a message from him may be expected, calling upon Congress to make the fullest and most efficient preparations for the worst contingency that may happen. This will be wise, and the country will approve of the measure. I must positively demur to the charges so gratuitously made against the friends of the President in the Senate, viz: Messrs. Cass, Allen, Hannegan, &c., of having raised a war panic, with a view to ulterior personal and political interests. The reverse, sir, I assure you, is the case; for, if either of those gentlemen were silly enough to do such a thing for such a purpose, it would not only not subserve that object, but entirely and ultimately defeat it.

With regard to Gen. Cass' course in the Senate, he has done nothing more than make a motion of enquiry into the state of our national defences; and this was done, presume, while cognizant of the existing condition of things. I am, therefore, surprised that any sane person should look upon so simple a matter, as a desire to blow the flame of war upon the country. I have watched with some attention the conduct of the Senators thus arraigned by certain writers as panic makers, and I confess I have seen nothing in their line of policy at all calculated to impress me with such an idea. On the contrary, I have considered them to be the President's organs in the Senate chamber, and the reflectors of his will upon almost all occasions; and, consequently, whatever views they may have expressed upon important public affairs, I have invariably set down as coming directly from the Executive. It is admitted by every member of the Senate, that the honorable Senators above named, are in the confidence of the President, and that whatever they do or say in relation to great national questions, has such a Senate, that the honorable Senators above named, are in the confidence of the President, and that whatever they do or say in relation to great national questions, has such a degree of importance attached to it, that within that chamber they are listened to by all parties with the greatest attention.

The correspondence just communicated to Congress, cannot be considered in the light of negotiations, though they partake in some slight degree of that character; and, therefore, we must conclude that all negotiations are now at an end, until resumed again by the British Government. I believe, indeed, I may say, that I know, Mr. Pakenham has received powers from his Government, to propose the forty-ninth parallel as the boundary line between the two countries, with the privilege of navigating the Columbia River; but he will not, I presume, make any overture to this Government, of such a character, until he first assure humself that it is likely to be acceded to. To this proposition, he may rest satisfied this Government will never consent; so that unless England recede from the position in which her minister has placed her, by his refusal of the President's offer of the forty-ninth parallel, war must consequently ensue, for which England alone will have to bear all the blame. So far, then, up to this time, except what this last correspondence has shown to have taken place upon the subject of the Oregon dispute—not a line has been received by this Government from her Majesty's Ministers in England, in relation to it. Everything remains just as it did in August last. I have been informed that Elliott was sent out some time since to San Louis Potosi, by Mr. Pakenham, with instructions to set the revolution on foot which has brought Paredes into power, and to pledge the faith of the British Government for whatever expenses might be incurred in the prosecution of the same. I have been of this opinion all along, and have so expressed myself of it to you more than once in my letters. England, no doubt, is anxious to create

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8, 1846 Arbitration.

The arbitration correspondence is the subject of the town talk; particularly Mr. Buchanan's last let ter. The information which he gives to Mr. Paken. ham, that Oregon is comparatively of no value to England, must, we think, induce Sir Richard to give up the British claim entirely, as not worth further contesting. Mr. Buchanan's language, reduced to plain Saxon, is tantamount to this:-Now, Sir Richard, you have me fairly cornered. I am bound to stand by the President's assumption of the "whole or none." Won't you be good enough to oblige us by leaving the premises ? They are of no use to you; and even if you should get half the territory by arbitration, you wouldn't gain much, because, you know, we would root you out in a few because, you know, we would root you out in a few years, any how, by the na'ural laws of annexation! Shade of the diplomatic Talleyrand, what sort of diplomacy is this?

But we must stand by Old Buck. Like a blind horse, he has drawn the chaise into the slough, or overslough, and, i'faith, we must put our shoulders to the wheel and help him out.

Negotiations, however, are not foreclosed. There is a chance yet of a treaty, even at the cost of a cabinet explosition and a re-organization of the American ministry.

One thing is worth noticing in connection with the overture of arbitration. Almost simultaneously with the proposition of Mr. Pakenham, Mr. Berrien, in the Senate, and Mr. King, of Ga., in the House, proposed the same alternative. A hat on it.

That gave the secret to Mr. Berrien and Mr. King.

We are prepared to hear of a cabinet rupture now, at the shortest notice.

Mr. Burchanan was certainly thinking of the tariff, and the ten war steamers, and the iron trade of Pennsylvania, when he said that Oregon was of no value to Great Britain; and, therefore, the President had very naturally claimed it all.

Our title, too, is so clear and unquestionable that it is not to be brought into question by an impartial jury.

Father Ritchie has been drumming up all round world for an arbitrator, and can't find one without a bias for John Bull. Why didn't he think of the Emperor of China 1 Why didn't Ar. Buchanas
